

BREAKDOWN RATES

These are, of course, only estimates of the persistence of these materials and they never really degrade or disappear. Many factors effect the breakdowns of these materials and plastic and glass have not been in evidence long enough to confirm these estimates.

